Gender and Sexuality in Japan
Norms, Practice and Selves in Motion

Section 1

Instructor/Title Jeffry T. Hester, Ph.D.

Course Outline / Description

This course aims to explore beliefs and practices in Japan related to gender and sexuality, and how they shape the lives of people in Japan. Through the course, students will gain the conceptual, historical and cultural background for understanding long-term tendencies and dynamic changes regarding gender and sexuality within the context of Japanese society.

In exploring such gender-related phenomena, we will discuss the meanings underpinning contested ideas of femininity and masculinity, gender roles and the gendered division of labor in Japan, and issues of sexuality, reproduction, and the body. A comparative, cross-cultural perspective will be employed throughout the course, and students will be asked to reflect on their own culturally specific, gendered perspectives and positions.

Topics to be covered include: (1) the symbolic construction of gender through language, religion and popular culture images; (2) the historical background to currently dominant gender roles in Japan; (3) gender ideology, the politics of reproduction and the state; (4) socialization of gender roles; (5) family, work, and the gendered division of labor; (6) changing values and behavior at the intersection of sexuality and gender, including conjugal relations, commercialized worlds of sex, and commodification of the body; and (7) claims for greater inclusion of lesbian, gay and transgender people in Japan, and the dynamically shifting and contested discourses, identity work and institutional practices set forth, including struggles for marriage equality, easier access to legal recognition of gender identity, and broader protections of human rights.

Course Objectives/Goals/Learning Outcomes

In this course, we will explore gender as cultural belief, as a social structuring mechanism and as a source of social inequality Japan, as well as issues concerning the social construction of sexuality. Students will be expected to (1) develop a critical approach to the understanding of gender- and sexuality-related phenomena; (2) acquire a deeper appreciation of the institutions and beliefs surrounding gender and sexuality in Japan, of how gender and sexuality interact with other spheres of life, and how they shape the perspectives and life course trajectories of people in Japan; and (3) through engagement with issues of gender and sexuality, critically engage with broader issues of cultural relativism, "human nature," power and social justice. Furthermore, students will (4) develop critical thinking skills through close reading and discussion of written and audio-visual materials, and (5) develop skills of expression and argumentation in both written form and oral form, through writing critical papers and class discussion and debate.
